DEEP FREEZE — President Donald Trump won the Iowa caucuses Monday, a crucial victory at the outset of the Republican primary that reinforces the former president’s position in the GOP nomination race. It is the first indication of what will be the last of three 2020 primaries. If he wins Tuesday, Trump will have taken three of the four primaries so far, and the next contest is in South Carolina, where he is expected to wrap up his campaign in a month.
