DeSantis ended his campaign for the Republican presidential nomination on Sunday, as Trump acknowledged the endorsement from DeSantis on national media.

Hampshire campaign head of state "iss superior to the current incumbent, Joe Biden." Trump said.

He endorsed Trump, saying he would "lead our country to victory." DeSantis added.

The endorsement from DeSantis Sunday afternoon, after Trump defeated Biden in the New Hampshire primary, was seen as a significant boost for Trump.

DeSantis said he and his family were "very grateful" for how they have been treated during the past two years. "We have always been treated with respect," he said.

DeSantis received 21.2% of the vote in New Hampshire, while Trump received 35.7%.

DeSantis faced challenges in his campaign, including a lack of resources and a difficult primary calendar.

In a statement, DeSantis said he is "proud of the campaign we have run and the message we have shared."

THE FSU COMMUNITY OF MILLIONS

The Florida State University community is mourning the loss of a beloved colleague and friend.

Amy Bentley-Smith, a member of the academic community, died unexpectedly on Monday, January 4.

Amy was a dedicated faculty member in the College of Education, where she taught courses in reading and language arts.

She was known for her passion for teaching and her commitment to her students. Her colleagues and former students remember her as a beloved mentor and a true friend.

FSU community members are invited to share their thoughts and memories of Amy during this time of loss.

THE SEEING POST

A student at the University of California, Berkeley, has been denied a visa for the United States.

VIKTOR M. STRIVICK, 30, is a PhD candidate in psychology at the university. He was denied a visa for a trip to the United States to attend a conference.

The U.S. Department of State has issued a travel alert for Viktor, warning that he may be at risk for deportation.

The university is working to help Viktor find a way to attend the conference and return home safely.
