A deadly rampage in the D.C. area

Serial carjackers slay one, critically wound another before police kill him

BY PETER HERRING, KATHY KERZNER AND JACOB HINTON

Police fatally shot a man early Wednesday who they believe committed the slayings of two people in Washington, D.C., and a critical wound in the shots that occurred in separate incidents in a span of less than an hour, leaving the District with two people dead and one severely injured — a rash of violence that has left District residents on edge.

The world’s second-largest nation-state — the United States — has been subjected to an epidemic of carjackings in the past year, the violence, starting nationwide and just in Washington, D.C., rampaging through the capital and leaving behind a trail of devastation.

The militarization of Eagle Pass, Tex.

On Wednesday, a Border Patrol agent was shot and killed in Eagle Pass, Texas, by a suspected drug smuggler, sparking a massive manhunt.

The mayhem ended a few days later when a drug kingpin was arrested at a suburban home in the nearby city of San Antonio.
